

Glenn Harris Bio

Glenn Harris, 65, joined Smoothie King in 2002 as director of architectural design and construction. Harris previously worked with the company for several years as an independent architectural design and construction consultant. He is responsible for everything related to the physical structure of Smoothie King's stores, ranging from the internal design and layout to landscaping and signage. The Louisiana native is a graduate of Louisiana State University and spent the bulk of his career in architecture planning and management.

True to Smoothie King's brand proposition of creating healthy lifestyles, Harris has been an athlete his entire life, and spent the past four years competitively training in the sport of masters weightlifting. Already a top contender, Harris has placed in several national and international competitions for his age and weight class. Much of his time outside the office is spent preparing for competition or taking part in other athletic pursuits, such as organized flag football and basketball.